Cooperative Institute for Marine and Atmospheric Studies

Assistant Scientist in Physical Oceanography

Position # 039676

The Cooperative Institute for Marine and Atmospheric Studies (CIMAS) of the University of Miami, Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science (RSMAS) invites applications for an Assistant Scientist position in Climate/Physical Oceanography. The incumbent will work with scientists in the Physical Oceanography Division of the Atlantic Oceanographic and Meteorological Laboratory (AOML) of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and in direct collaboration with scientists at RSMAS.

The Physical Oceanography Division (PHOD) of AOML carries out interdisciplinary scientific investigations in the field of Ocean and Climate. Specific research goals of PHOD are to determine the role of the ocean in long term climate change and variability and to provide data for analysis and assimilation into ocean models. This Division is a main partner in the development of a sustained Ocean Observing System for Climate to support NOAA mission requirements. As such, its overall mission is to provide quality ocean data and products in a timely and cost-effective manner to satisfy NOAA nowcast, forecast, detection, attribution and research mission requirements. Potential applicants are encouraged to find more information about PHOD at: www.aoml.noaa.gov/phod.

The successful applicant must have a Ph.D. in Physical Oceanography or related field, at least one year of post-doctoral experience, and demonstrate interest and experience in the following areas: 1. The Ability to collect, analyze and interpret oceanographic data. 2. A strong publication and research record. 3. Advanced computer programming skills. 4. A commitment to attracting external funding through proposals.
